How do you satisfy the tastes of the individual who wants the best of the best? Easy. You build something that has never been built before. You design buildings unlike any that have been designed before. You offer amenities unlike any that have ever been offered before. You build a resort unlike any that have been attempted before. You break records. You break from the status quo. You set the new standard that everything must now rise to. You create a resort called Turquoise Place. Welcome to the next level.
